

SAW HUSBAND FLIRT AND TRIED SUICIDE.

Bride of Seventeen, Suspecting Infidelity, Watched, and After Seeing Him with Women Took Carbolic Acid.

This is the report of an attempted suicide as rendered by the Jersey City police.

Mrs. Margaret Gorman, eighteen years, address No. 137 Morris street, attempted suicide by drinking carbolic acid at the corner of Montgomery and Washington streets. She had been followed by her sweetheart.

Here are the facts as discovered on investigation by an Evening World reporter:

Mrs. Margaret Walker Gorman, seventeen years of age, a bride of a month, living at the home of her parents, No. 137 Essex street, Jersey City, suspected that her youthful husband, Peter O'Gorman, of No. 100 Morris street, was paying attention to other women.

The couple had married secretly and the fact that they were husband and wife did not become known until a few days ago. Mrs. O'Gorman determined to follow her husband. Last night she traced him to a restaurant, and watching from the shadow of a nearby house, saw him greet two young women seated at a table near the restaurant window.

Mrs. O'Gorman waited until her husband emerged from the eating place. As he was crossing the street toward her the young wife ran to the steps of the Second National Bank nearby, and placing a vial to her lips, drank its contents. She screamed and fell unconscious upon the lower steps. Her husband was the first to reach her side.

Mrs. O'Gorman was taken to the City Hospital. She had taken carbolic acid. The young couple had not lived together since their marriage and it was only the accidental finding of a letter by one of her friends which revealed that she was a bride.

WED IN HOUSE OF DEATH.

In Last Moments Mrs. Harvey Insisted on Daughter's Marriage.

A death and marriage have occurred in the Harvey home at Oceanic, N. J., during the past three days. On Sunday Mrs. Lydia Harvey died suddenly from heart disease, aged seventy-three.

She had a presentation that her end was near, and a few hours before her death told her daughter Jessie not to postpone her wedding, which had been announced for yesterday afternoon.

The marriage occurred at the stated time, the Rev. S. W. Knipe officiating. The same clergyman conducted the funeral service of Mrs. Harvey yesterday. The bridegroom is Henry Heney, of Hensonsville, N. Y.

DEFENDS FIANCEE WHO TOOK ACID WHEN CALLED "THIEF."

Andrew J. Sexton Tells of Pitiful Grief of Young Girl Who Could Not Bear Unjust Charge.

With a firm belief in her innocence and indignation at her fellow-employees who slandered her by saying that she was a thief, Andrew J. Sexton, fiancé of Louise Voss, who killed herself at Oceanic, N. J., yesterday, comes to her defense. They were to have been married soon, and the first thing that led to the identification of the girl in the morgue was the engagement ring she wore on her finger.

Miss Voss lived in Hilton, a suburb of Newark, and worked in Klausner's dry goods store at Springfield and Boyd streets. A small bill at the store had not been deducted from her salary just before she left to take another situation and the shop girls sneered at her, saying that she had stolen the things, and that this was the cause of her dismissal.

Sexton Tells Story.
Standing by the body of the girl in the morgue, Sexton said:

"A fellow that works in Klausner's came up to me on the street last night and he said no wonder my girl could dress well, since she swiped her things. I told him he was a liar and then went to his house. Then I went to meet Lou and walk home with her, as I did every night after work. She was crying. The lie had just got round to her shop and when she was leaving the factory some girl asked her where she got the pearls and why she left Klausner's. Then a lot of 'em gazed her and some one yelled 'thief.' The poor little thing ran five blocks to our corner, where we always meet. She took the pearls off as she came along and came up to me all out of breath crying, with the pearls in her hand.

"I ain't a thief, Andy. They lie. The boss let me have those things and fixed before I had time to ask what the matter was. Then she asked me if I had heard any stories about her. I told her I'd only heard one fellow lie about her, and so hadn't smashed but one, but would fix 'em all. That let her know that I didn't think she was a thief, and it seemed to cheer her up. She told me all about it, and wound up by crying again."

Would Pay the Bill.
"I told her I'd go right down to Klausner's then and pay the bill, and for her to go home and not to bother. She said she would, and kissed me good-night. That's the last time I saw her. I went down to the dry-goods store and paid the bill, but she wasn't there. I waited almost all night with her father and mother and then went out hunting for her. The first we heard was that a girl with a ring with three emeralds in it had been found dying by the road in Bloomfield and that she died at midnight in the hospital. We found the engagement ring. I gave it to her just two months ago on her sixteenth birthday."

LIFE-SAVING HEROINE NOW A HAPPY BRIDE

Long Branch Congratulates Miss Nellie Williams, Whose Rescues Earned Her a Life-Saving Medal.

The good wishes of all the residents of Long Branch follow Nellie Florita Williams, daughter of Dr. J. A. Williams, who is now the bride of George Warner Evans. The bride is the heroine of a daring rescue from the water and has several medals for swimming.

She became the idol of the summer colony in Long Branch in August, 1929. Miss Williams had been swimming with Miss Edith Harris, of No. 113 East Twelfth street, when Miss Harris was carried off by a strong undertow and none of the men bathers dared to go to her rescue.

Miss Williams swam to her without hesitation and kept her up until she was safely on shore. She was the sixth woman to receive a medal from the Volunteer Life-Saving Corps. It was the first, it is said, to rescue a person in the open ocean.

Fire among the drugs in the cellar of the drug store of Frank Gundlach, at 400 Hudson street and 600 Columbus avenue, quickly caused a stampede of people drinking at the soda fountain.

WATCHING CATS, HE FALLS TO DEATH.

Henry Bierman Leans Far Out in Looking at Fight and Drops Three Stories, Striking on Head.

Henry Bierman, fifty-one years old, lost his life this morning by falling out of a window while watching two cats fight.

Bierman was a cigarmaker by trade, and lived at No. 619 East Fifteenth street. He was paying an early morning call on his sister, Mrs. Lena Vasto, who lives on the third floor of No. 215 Seventh street, when the fatality occurred.

Hearing the snarling, spitting and growling of the cats he leaned far out of a window to see the fight, lost his balance and fell on his head on the stone flagging below. He must have been instantly killed.

Patrolman Mendelsohn sent for an ambulance from Bellevue Hospital and Dr. Waterhouse responded. The doctor could only pronounce the old man dead.

CUT DOWN HANGING MAN.

Police Found Him in North Beach Pavilion Just in Time.

Policeman Day reached a North Beach pavilion this morning just in time to save the life of a man who had hanged himself to a rafter.

Day cut the man down, and finding his body still warm, tried to resuscitate him. Succeeding in a measure in getting breath into the lungs, he called an ambulance and had the unconscious man removed to a hospital.

The only clue to the identity of the would-be suicide was a card of John Posner, a season-keeper at Church and Barclay streets, Manhattan, on which was written the name of Christopher Weinberger.

KILLED TWO, SHOT HIMSELF.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Oscar Webb, colored, during a family quarrel today shot and killed his wife and her mother in Germantown, a suburb of the city.

He then turned the revolver on himself and inflicted a fatal wound.
